THE man who had the contract for the fireworks at the St. Louis bridge celebration failed miserably, cither because he was a little too avaricious or was not permittedto have his own way. The result is that St. Louis is now in a terrible state of excitement. The editor of the Globe, who is a whole pyrotechnic factory in himself, has worked himself into a blaze of frenzy on the subject, and bids fair to explode himself or somebody else. If we were in St. Louis we should advise that "Mack" be thrown off the bridge two or three times to cool him.
